

The new expanded team at Richardson Swift

Mike Richardson and Derek Swift, the founders of Richardson Swift, are delighted to announce the expansion of their team of directors.

Jon Miles the tax director is now also an owner of the business alongside Mike and Derek. Mike says “we are delighted that Jon has taken the final step and joined us in ownership”.

Mike and Derek have worked with Jon for several years and believe that Jon’s extensive tax knowledge together with his accounting background adds a real strength to the tax service of the firm. Jon will be developing this service more over the coming months and shares the firm’s core beliefs that we are here to build relationships and proactively advise clients. Outside of work Jon is currently tied up with sorting out his new home after recently moving into the city and is a keen drummer.

Debbie Boulton has just joined the team as Director of Business Services. Debbie has vast experience looking after owner managed businesses and has particular expertise in outsourced solutions to meet businesses’ financial needs. Being passionate about business, Debbie enjoys working with business owners to determine their future goals and then work with them to achieve them. As Debbie says “I can tailor my offering to whatever a client needs, be it a business advisor, a sounding board or simply an efficient and proactive accountant”. Coming from a larger, traditional firm, Debbie was keen to move to a company where she can provide clients with a more personal service at a competitive price. She also has the desire to develop the ‘cloud accounting’ specialism at Richardson Swift, recognising that today’s IT advances can improve efficiency and reporting within small businesses. When not ‘crunching the numbers’, Debbie acts as a taxi service to her two daughters, ferrying them around to various events, squeezing in the odd run and book club meeting when time allows!
